

Saint Thomas Aquinas Chapter of the Fraternity of Saint Joseph Men's Group Code of Conduct

The need for reflection of self-governing principles is what brought us together, but what we are really doing is taking a God-sized view of changing the narrative, while building up a community of faith filled men who can shoulder up and rely on each other to help each other through our physical lives, and forging and fortifying our spiritual lives. Our virtuous efforts should morally point to a community that's worthy of once again leading in its reflection. Let's try our best to approach each other in a Christ-like manner in our dialogue, and keep intentionally mindful of our greater mission, which is to work out our faith-filled family's salvation through our fellowship. In humility, let's intentionally love each other past our worldly faults as brothers in Christ. Our imperfections are in fact what makes us perfect in our Father's eyes. Iron sharpens iron!